Executive Summary

Washington State's 2026 Primary Election took place on August 4th, 2026, with all 5,147,853 active voters receiving a ballot in the mail. Voters cast their ballots for 688 total contests, choosing the top-two candidates in 10 congressional races, 122 legislative races, 4 Supreme Court races, 268 countywide and county council races, 3 city council races, 273 precinct officer races, and 8 other local races.

Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary was 37.2%, 3.8% lower than 2022 and 4.6% lower than 2024. Nearly 2 million voters returned their ballot in the 2026 Primary Election, with the highest turnout in the Olympia Peninsula and Northwestern Washington and the lowest turnout in South Central Washington and the Puget Sound. Considerable turnout gaps by age and race were prevalent throughout the state, with older voters and White voters casting a disproportionate share of overall votes in nearly every district and county. Despite making up less than 40% of the electorate, voters 55 and older accounted for more than 60% of all ballots returned in this election; similarly, while White voters make up 80% of the electorate, they accounted for 90% of all ballots returned. Compared to 2022, turnout was relatively even among rural voters, slightly higher among urban voters, and quite a bit lower for suburban voters. 2 million voters who voted in the 2024 General Election did not vote in the 2026 Primary, including large shares of young voters and voters of color.

More than 20,000 ballots arrived too late to be counted, the highest share (1.1%) of any other primary or general election since at least 2021. This number was even higher in rural areas throughout Eastern and Central Washington, particularly Yakima County (4.4%) and Stevens County (4.3%). Intentional outreach to voters in these areas will be essential to ensuring every vote is counted in the 2026 General Election.

Voters overwhelmingly supported Democratic candidates for the state legislature, in a move that could lead to the first legislative supermajority in over 60 years. Democratic candidates won solid majorities of the vote in districts narrowly-won by Democrats in 2022 and 2024, including LD10 (Island County), LD26 (Bremerton), and LD42 (Whatcom County), as well as in districts currently held by Republicans in Southwestern Washington, including LD17 (Washougal and Skamania County) and LD18 (Battle Ground). Democratic candidates also finished nearly even with Republican incumbents in LD12 (Chelan County), LD14 (Yakima Valley), LD25 (Puyallup), LD35 (Mason County), setting up for hotly contested races throughout the state in this November's General Election. Washington State Democrats only need to gain 7 seats to secure a supermajority in the State House for the 2027-2028 legislative session, and finished ahead or within 5% in 10 contests in Republican-held districts. In reliably-Democratic districts throughout the Puget Sound, voters also widely supported progressive challengers against more moderate Democratic incumbents, including in LD29 (Tacoma), LD32 (Shoreline, Lynnwood), LD37 (South Seattle), and LD48 (Bellevue, Redmond). Together, the results from this election indicate a desire for more progressive policymaking in Olympia in the coming session.

Every congressional incumbent finished in the top two, though some incumbents may be at risk of losing their seat in the fall. Rep. Marie Gluesenkamp Perez (D, CD3) faced a challenge from her left in Brent Hennrich (D), finishing with just 37% of the vote, less than any other incumbent in Washington. However, the two Democrats collectively received nearly 55% of the vote in the district, despite the district voting for Trump in 2016, 2020, and 2024. Rep. Gluesenkamp Perez will face State Sen. John Braun (R, LD20) in the November General Election, in a race that could help decide control of the U.S. House of Representatives. In Eastern Washington, one-term incumbent Michael Baumgartner (R, CD5) received less than 50% of the vote against a crowded field of Democrats and left-leaning Independents, and will face Carmela Conroy (D) in a rematch this fall. CD5 typically votes a bit more Democratic in general elections than primary elections, so it is possible for the district to flip for the first time in over 30 years.

Data Hub partners made more than 2.35 million voter contacts in the summer of 2026, reaching more than 1.2 million voters across all 39 counties. 24 partner organizations were actively involved in voter outreach work, including deep canvassing, get-out-the-vote efforts, ballot measure advocacy, and local candidate support. The majority of organizations focused their outreach on lower-propensity voters – those who do not typically vote in odd-year elections, particularly young voters and voters of color – and overall, this outreach had a decidedly positive impact on turnout: traditional in-person outreach led to a 12.2% increase in voter turnout, while phonebanking led to a 9.4% increase in voter turnout. Nearly 50,000 voters contacted by partner organizations who did not vote in 2022 voted in this election, emphasizing the power community organizing has at motivating people to vote and expanding the electorate.

Voters in Spokane County approved Spokane Transit Authority Measure 1 51.5% to 48.5%, renewing public transit funding for 20 years. Transportation Choices Coalition led the effort to renew the measure, making more than 250,000 contact attempts to over 140,000 voters in the district, despite more than $300,000 in spending to defeat the measure.

Methodology

Electorate and voter turnout

Data on Washington's current population of registered voters ("electorate") was accessed via America Votes' Voter Activation Network (VAN). VAN data related to voter demographics, geography, and vote history was last updated on July 16th, 2026, so demographic data for anyone who registered to vote after that date will not be included in this report; however, precinct information on those new registrants who voted in the 2026 Primary is included in ballot return data, so counts of new voters who voted in this election are included throughout this report. All data processing and visualization was done using custom-written Python scripts, executed in a local Jupyter environment. Final ballot status reports ("matchbacks") for the 2026 Primary Election were downloaded from the Secretary of State's website, and voter IDs were mapped onto voter data from the VAN to update vote history data for these elections. To correct for any incomplete geographic information in the voter file, voters' precinct information was mapped onto corresponding district information (county, city, congressional district, legislative district), and any missing values were updated.

Data on voters' age and sex were provided from the voter file, and data on voters' race was provided by Catalyst, a national data vendor, using mathematical modeling with census tract-level demographic data and a variety of other sources. Although extensively validated and highly accurate, modeled data is never 100% accurate, so there are minor inaccuracies in individual-level race data in the voter file; this should be considered when interpreting results and analyses of voter data accessed from the VAN. Throughout this report, race data is grouped using the latest recommendations from those communities, including "AA/NH/PI" for Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians, and Pacific Islanders; and "AI/AN" for American Indian and Alaskan Natives. Race data is particularly inaccurate for AI/AN voters, who are far more likely to report multiracial identities in the U.S. Census. In general, these individuals are categorized as "Unknown", so the true count of AI/AN voters in Washington State likely includes some percentage of those folks. "New voters" are those who registered to vote for the first time since January 1st, 2026.

Voter outreach

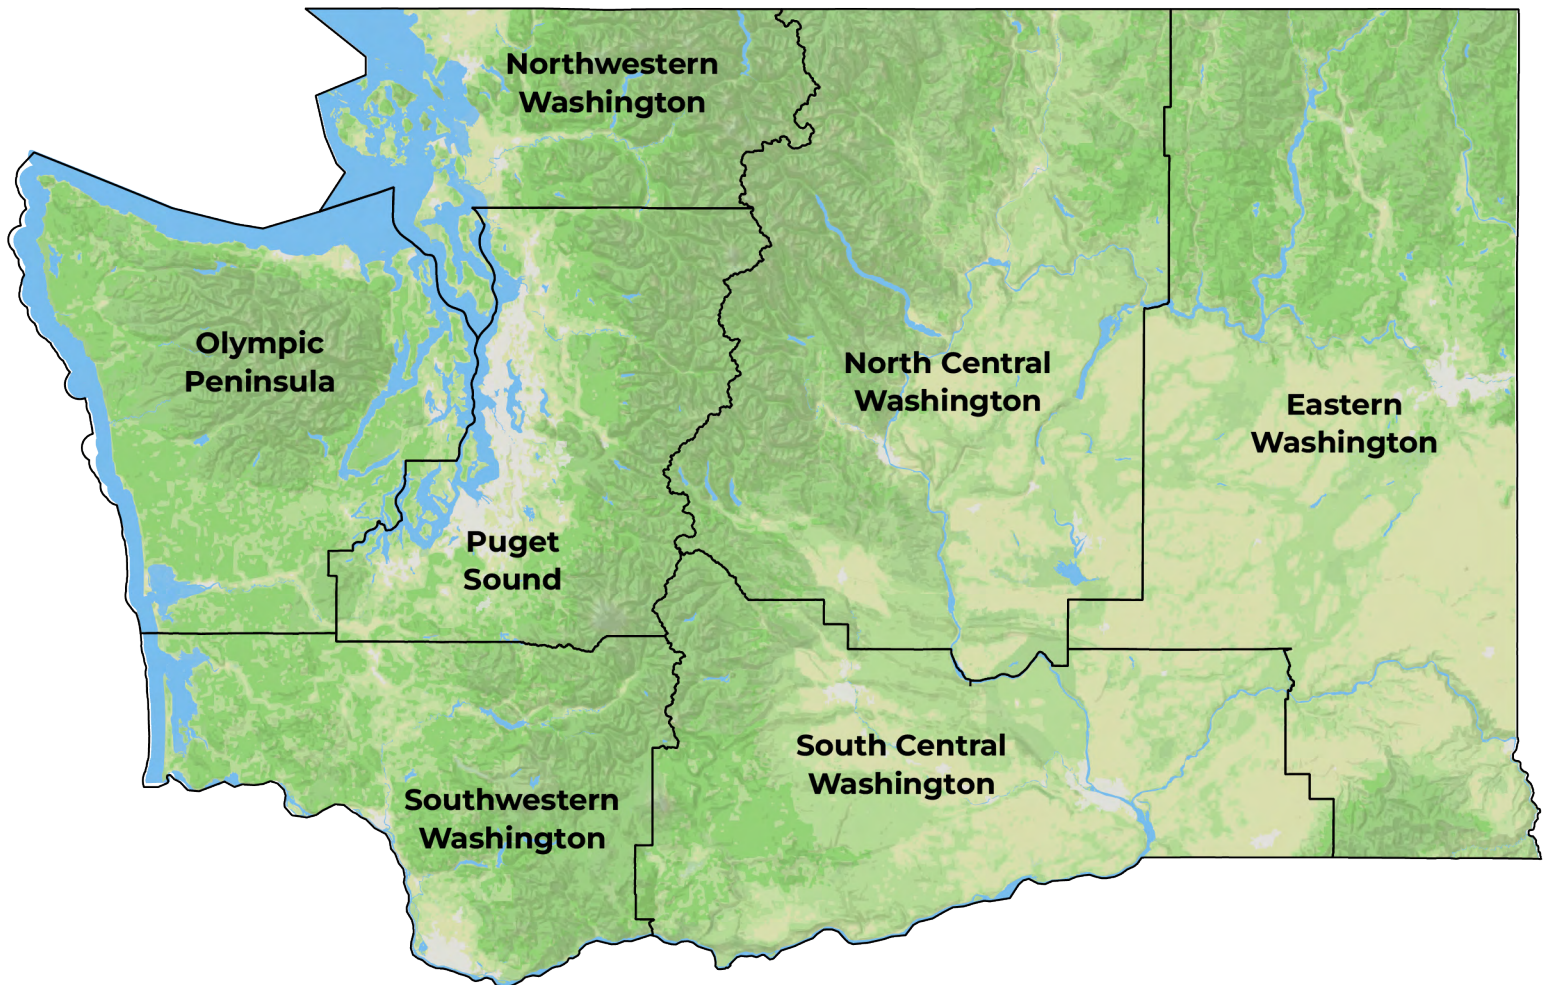

Data on outreach work done by WCA Data Hub partners from May 1st, 2026 through August 14th, 2026 was accessed via America Votes' VAN (501c4 outreach) and State Voices' VAN (501c3 outreach). Voter IDs were used to map data related to outreach with the preprocessed voter file to allow detailed analyses. Only data collected by WCA Data Hub partners and returned to the VAN by August 14th, 2026 was included in this report, so the extent of voter engagement work may not be fully represented herein. For in-person canvassing and phonebanking outreach, the impact on voter turnout was assessed by comparing turnout of individuals who were successfully contacted ("canvassed") against turnout of individuals who were not contacted ("no contact").

Election results

Results for the 2022, 2024, and 2026 elections were downloaded from the Washington Secretary of State's website, and processed and visualized using custom-written Python scripts. Data on the current incumbent for all races on the ballot this year was downloaded from the Secretary of State's website, and mapped onto the election results. Any incumbents running under different names than the previous time they ran (e.g., Jane M. Doe instead of Jane Doe) will be incorrectly marked as not being an incumbent. Party data for individual candidates was mapped from their self-reported "Preferred Party", and aggregated into four groups: Democratic, Republican, Independent/Other, or None (non-partisan races). For some analyses, left- and right-leaning Independent/Other candidates' votes were pooled with Democrats and Republicans (respectively) to compare overall ideological lean across districts. Throughout this report, vote totals for candidates will be color-coded based on party affiliation (as applicable). Precinct-level results for Primary Elections (2012 through 2026) can be explored with the Washington Primary Election Dashboard, WCA's interactive tool for viewing and exploring Primary election results.

Statewide Electorate

Washington State's electorate grew to 5,147,853 active voters in 2026, a net increase of +65,547 since the November 2025 General Election (+146,005 new voters, -80,458 dropped voters). Similar to recent years, new registrants are predominately young (median age = 33 years old), with a particularly high density in the Puget Sound (45% of all new registrants). Relative to the 2025 electorate, Southwestern Washington saw the greatest relative growth in 2026 (+2.3% / +11,848 voters), followed by the Puget Sound (+1.9% / +41,126 voters), South Central Washington (+1.9% / +7,132 voters), and the Olympic Peninsula (+1.9% / +7,242 voters), while Eastern Washington (+1.7% / +8,083 voters), North Central Washington (+1.7% / +3,211 voters), and Northwestern Washington (+1.6% / +13,613 voters) saw the smallest relative growth. Suburban voters make up the majority of Washington's electorate (60%) and the largest share of new voters in 2026 (59%); urban voters make up the second largest share (23.7%), and account for a disproportionately higher share of new voters (27.8%); rural voters are the smallest share of the electorate (13.3%), and had the smallest number of new voters so far in 2026 (13.3%).

White voters remain the largest voting group in Washington State (4,062,094 voters), but account for relatively fewer new registrants in 2026 (+1.4% / +55,921 voters). Washington's White voters skew older than voters of other races (median age = 51 years old), with 23% under the age of 35 and 29% over the age of 65. White voters make up the largest share of the electorate in every region, with the highest relative share in Eastern Washington (92.7%), the Olympic Peninsula (89.9%), and Southwestern Washington (89.6%), and the smallest relative share in South Central Washington (72.1%) and the Puget Sound (74.3%). White voters are the most reliable group of Primary voters in Washington State: 26% voted in 3 or 4 recent elections (2023 to 2026), 34% voted once or twice, and 40% did not vote at all.

Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians, and Pacific Islanders (AA/NH/PI) make up the second largest segment of Washington's electorate (356,594 voters), and account for the third fastest growing group of voters (+2.4% in 2026). Washington's AA/NH/PI voters are slightly younger than the overall electorate (median age: all voters = 45 years old, new voters 37 years old), with nearly 30% under the age of 35 and 18.5% over the age of 65. AA/NH/PI voters make up a relatively small share of the electorate in every region except the Puget Sound (11.9%) and Northwestern Washington (6.7%), and account for more than one-fifth of the electorate in cities along the Puget Sound – including Bellevue (29%), Sammamish (24%), Renton

Registered voters by county

(24%), Tukwila (22%), Kent (22%), and Redmond (22%). AA/NH/PI voters are the second most reliable group of Primary voters in Washington State: 14% voted in 3 or 4 recent elections, 25% voted once or twice, and 61% did not vote at all.

Latino voters are the third largest voting group in Washington State (324,328 voters), and represent the fastest growing segment of the electorate (+2.9% in 2026). Washington's Latino voters are the youngest segment of the electorate (median age = 35 years old), with 48% under the age of 35 and just 10% over the age of 65. Latino voters make up sizable segments of the electorate in South Central Washington (23%), North Central Washington (15%), Northwestern Washington (5%), and the Puget Sound (5%), and account for the majority of the electorate in 15 cities in Washington – including Mattawa (88%), Granger (79%), Toppenish (78%), Wapato (76%), Sunnyside (73%), and Grandview (73%). Latino voters are the group least likely to vote in Washington's primary elections: just 7% voted in 3 or 4 recent elections, 21% voted once or twice, and 72% did not vote at all.

Black voters are the fourth largest segment of Washington's electorate (132,158 voters), and account for the second fastest growing segment (+2.6% in 2026). Washington's Black voters are relatively younger than the overall electorate (median age = 41 years old), with 35% under the age of 35 and just 12% over the age of 65. Black voters make up less than 2% of the electorate in every region except the Puget Sound (4%), accounting for a sizable share of the electorate in the South Sound, including Seatac (16%), Tukwila (16%), Lakewood (12%), Federal Way (11%), Kent (9%), and Tacoma (8%). Black voters overall are among the least likely to vote in Washington's primary elections: 13% voted in 3 or 4 recent elections, 23% voted once or twice, and 65% did not vote at all.

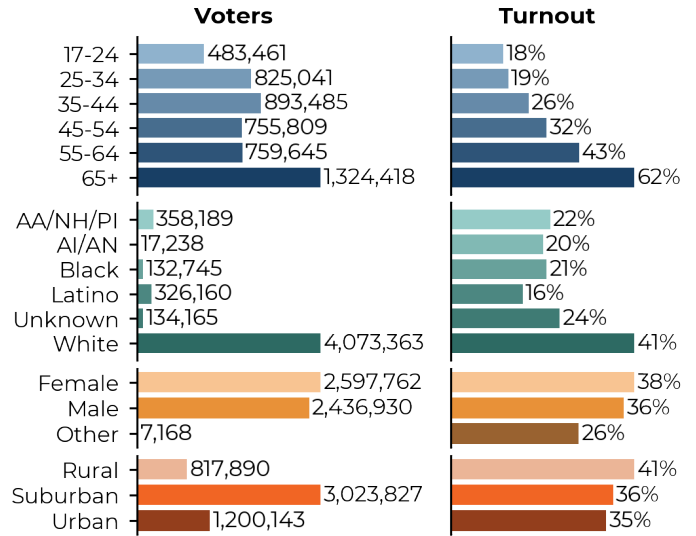

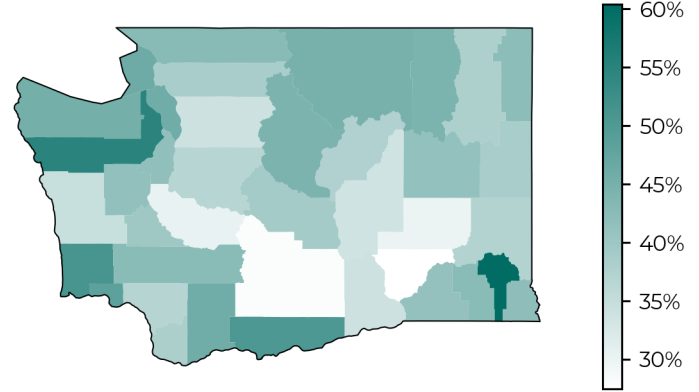

American Indians and Alaska Natives (AI/AN) are the smallest segment of Washington's electorate (17,190 voters), and are the second slowest growing share of the electorate (+1.9% in 2026). Washington's AI/AN voters are relatively representative of the overall electorate in terms of age (median age = 46 years old), with 29% under the age of 35 and 22% over the age of 65. AI/AN voters make up less than 1% of the electorate in every region except North Central Washington (1.2%) and the Olympic Peninsula (1%). AI/AN voters are among the least likely to vote in Washington's primary elections: 8% voted in 3 or 4 recent elections, 28% voted once or twice, and 64% did not vote at all. Critically, race data on Washington's voter file is modeled and relatively less accurate for AI/AN voters than other races, so these counts are likely under representative of Washington's true AI/AN electorate.

Voter Turnout

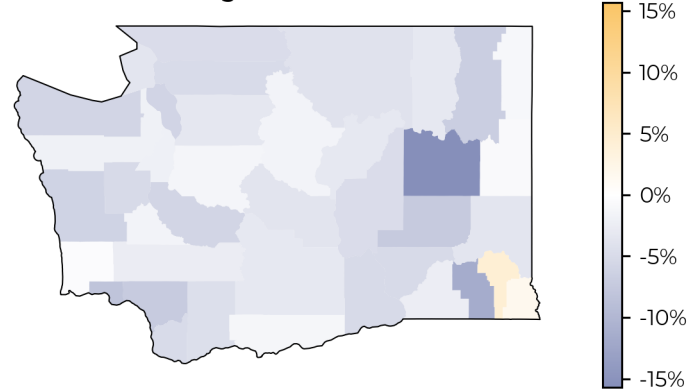

Washington State's August 2026 Primary Election took place on August 4th, 2026, with all 5,147,853 voters receiving a ballot from the Secretary of State. Voters cast their ballots for a total of 688 races, including 10 congressional races, 122 legislative races, 4 supreme court races, 268 county races, 3 city council races, 273 precinct officer races, and 8 other local races. Voters also weighed in on 80 ballot measures, including 2 county measures, 16 municipal measures, 38 fire district measures, and 4 school measures, and 20 other local measures. This report will focus on turnout and results for four jurisdictions: state, congressional, legislative, and county.

Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary Election was 37.3% (1,919,356 ballots returned), 3.7% lower than the 2022 Primary (41.0%) and 4.6% lower than the 2024 Primary (41.8%). Turnout was highest in the Olympic Peninsula (42.1%), North Central Washington (39.7%), Southwestern Washington (39.2%), and Eastern Washington (38.8%), and lowest in Northwestern Washington (37.1%), the Puget Sound (35.4%), and South

Voter turnout by County

Central Washington (32.4%). Overall, turnout was highest among rural voters (41.3%) and lower among suburban voters (36.6%) and urban voters (35%). Turnout of female voters was 2.2% higher than turnout of male voters (38% vs 35.8%), with a similar turnout gap across every region of the state.

Statewide, turnout generally increased with age (<20% for 18-34 year olds, >60% for voters 65 and older), and turnout of voters 35 and older was 2.4x higher than turnout of voters under 35 years old (44.1% vs 18.6%). The turnout gap between younger (17-34 year olds) and older (35 and older) voters varied by region, with the smallest disparity in the Puget Sound (21.1%) and Northwestern Washington (24.8%), and the largest disparity in Eastern Washington (28.2%), the Olympic Peninsula (30.2%), and North Central Washington (30.8%). Turnout of young voters (17-34 years old) was highest in Garfield County (33.3%), Klickitat County (25.3%), Whatcom County (23.9%), King County (22.4%), and Pacific County (22.4%) counties, and lowest in Franklin County (12%), Adams County (11.1%), and Yakima County (11.1%) counties.

Turnout of White voters was ~1.7x higher than turnout of voters of color (40.9% vs 24.3%), though this varied by region: the racial turnout gap was smallest in the Puget Sound (18.5%), the Olympic Peninsula (20.1%), and Eastern Washington (20.4%), and largest in South Central Washington (27%) and North Central Washington (30.1%). Turnout of voters of color was highest in Garfield County (35.7%), Jefferson County (34.9%), and Skamania County (32%), and lowest in Yakima County (13%), Benton County (12.7%), Franklin County (12.1%), Adams County (11.3%), and Douglas County (11.1%).

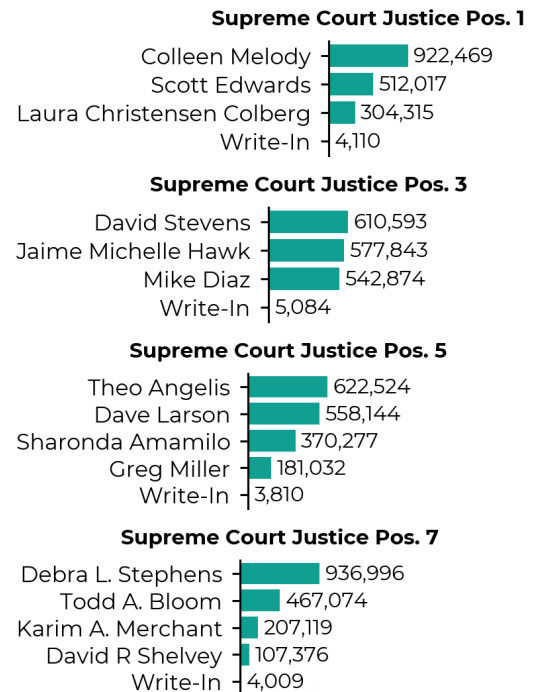

Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary election was 3.8% lower than the 2022 Primary election, with decreased turnout everywhere except Columbia County. Compared to 2022, turnout was relatively comparable for rural voters (41.3% vs 41.0%), a bit higher for urban voters (35% vs 32.1%), and a bit lower for suburban voters (35.4% vs 36.5%).

Ongoing budget shortfalls and mail delays by the United States Postal Service (USPS) led to concern among election officials and community leaders that mailed-in ballots might not arrive by election day. This concern was amplified after the 2026 February and April Special Elections that saw twice as many ballots rejected for arriving too late, compared to elections from 2022 through 2025. Largely via web and social media posts, these groups emphasized the importance of returning ballots via official ballot drop boxes instead of the U.S. postal service, and voters paid attention: 69% of ballots were returned via drop box in the 2026 Primary election, the largest share in any election since at least 2020. Overall, 1.1% of all ballots were rejected for arriving too late (20,265 ballots), the largest share in a primary or general election since at least 2021. Several predominately rural counties had much higher-than-normal rates of ballots arriving too late, including Yakima (4.4%), Stevens (4.3%), Franklin (2.8%), Pend Oreille (2.8%), Okanogan (2.7%), Lewis (2.7%), Adams (2.2%), Walla Walla (2.2%), and Whitman (2.1%). Many of these counties have a shortage of ballot drop boxes within the county and voters have little choice but to return their ballots by mail; extra effort should be made to encourage voters in the November election.

Nearly 8,000 challenged ballots were also rejected in this election, due to signature issues that were not reconciled before August 18th. The largest overall number of challenged, uncured ballots was in King County (2,089 ballots) and Snohomish County (684 ballots), and the highest rate of challenged, uncured ballots was in Grant County (1.6%) and Ferry County (1.2%). All other counties had challenged rates <1%, a considerable decline from 2024 and 2025.

Election Results

Voters cast their ballots for four Supreme Court positions in the 2026 Primary: Colleen Melody, appointed in 2026 by Gov. Ferguson and running for a full term, finished first in the race for Supreme Court Justice Pos. 1 with 52.9% of the vote, followed by Scott Edwards with 29.4% and Laura Christensen Colberg with 17.4%; in the open seat to replace Justice Charles W. Johnson, David Stevens finished first in the race for Supreme Court Justice Pos. 3 with 35.2% of the vote, followed by Jaime Michelle Hawk with 33.3% and Mike Diaz with 31.3%; Theo Angelis, also appointed in 2026 by Gov. Ferguson and running for a full term, finished first in the race for Supreme Court Justice Pos. 5 with 35.9% of the vote, followed by Dave Larson with 32.1%, Sharonda Amamilo with 21.3%, and Greg Miller with 10.4%; incumbent Chief Justice Debra L. Stephens finished first in the race for Supreme Court Justice Pos. 7 with 54.4% of the vote, followed by Todd A. Bloom with 27.1%, Karim A. Merchant with 12.0%, and David R Shelvey with 6.2%.

Election Analysis

The 2026 Primary Election offered a preview of the upcoming midterm elections, allowing voters throughout Washington the opportunity to weigh in on the political direction of their legislative and congressional representatives. At the federal level, incumbents in every congressional district finished in the top-two and will advance to the general election, with Democrats on-track to hold onto 8 of 10 districts. At the state legislative level, voters exhibited a strong leftward pull in which candidates they supported, with Democrats winning solid majorities in swing districts, Democrats leading or within striking distance in Republican-held districts, and progressives competing to replace incumbent center-left Democrats in solidly Democratic districts.

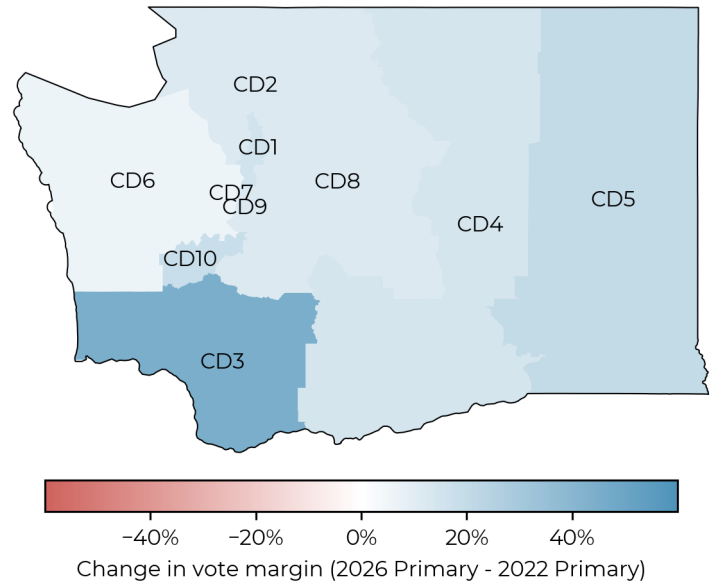

Most likely to flip: LD17 and LD18

Southwestern Washington was a Democratic stronghold through the early 2000s before swinging hard to the right after 2012; in recent years, the region has gradually shifted back to the left, but voters have consistently split their tickets. In the Vancouver suburbs in Clark and Skamania Counties, voters in LD17 and LD18 supported Marie Gluesenkamp Perez (D) for Congress twice (2022 and 2024), yet in the same elections chose Republicans for the state legislature. In LD17 (Camas, Washougal, Skamania County), Ben Christly (D) and Diana Perez (D) finished well ahead of incumbents Rep. Kevin Waters (R) and Rep. David Stuebe (R), winning 52.4% and 54.9% of the vote, respectively. Similarly, in LD18 (Battle Ground, Vancouver suburbs), Randi Knott (D) and Deken Letinich (D) finished ahead of incumbents Rep. Stephanie McClintock (R) and Rep. John Ley (R), receiving 52% and 53.4% of the vote, respectively. In 2022 and 2024, Democrats in LD17 and LD18 fared several points better in the general election than the primary election, raising the likelihood of these four seats flipping in the fall.

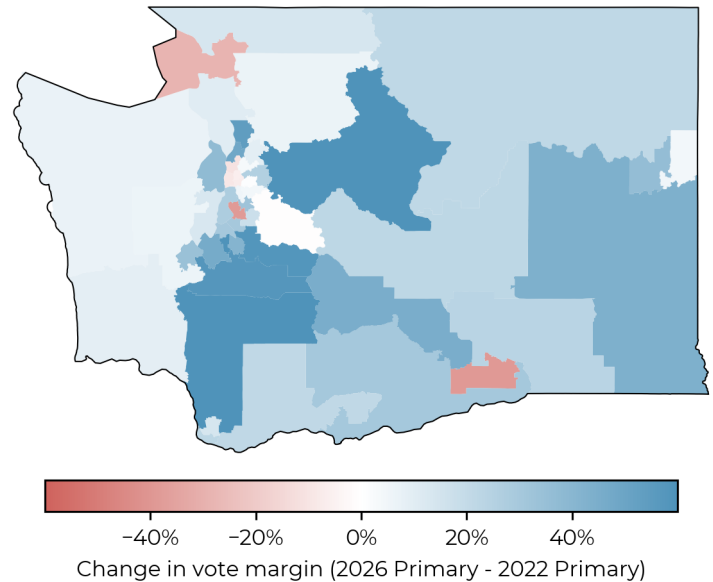

Toss-ups: LD12, LD14, LD25, and LD35

In 2024, Kamala Harris, Maria Cantwell, and Steve Hobbs all won four historically-Republican districts, even as voters chose Republicans for every legislative seat in those districts; in the 2026 primary, voters appeared to waver on their support for Republican legislators, setting up highly competitive races in the upcoming general election. In LD12 (Wenatchee, Chelan County), Stacy Willoughby (D) received 49.8% of the vote, fewer than 200 votes behind incumbent Rep. Brian Burnett (R). In LD14 (Yakima, Pasco), Chelsea Dimas (D) and William Chichenoff (I) together received 48.2% of the vote against incumbent Rep. Gloria Mendoza (R), and Ezequiel Morfin (D) and Tony Sandoval (D) together received 48.7% of the vote against incumbent Rep. Deb Manjarrez (R). Dimas and Morfin will face off against Mendoz and Manjarrez, respectively, in the general election, in a district that swung ~9 points to the Change in Congressional vote share, 2022 to 2026

Change in Legislative vote share, 2022 to 2026

left between the 2024 primary and general elections. In LD25 (Puyallup), David Berg (D) and Nick Oloo (D) together received 49.7% of the vote against incumbent Rep. Michael Keaton (R), and Jenn Marie Strickling (D) received 46.7% of the vote against incumbent Rep. Cyndy Jacobsen (R). In LD35 (Shelton, Mason County), Jim Pierson (D) and Shaena Garberich (D) together received 46.7% of the vote against incumbent Rep. Dan Griffey (R), Maria Littlesun (D) received 46.6% of the vote against Rep. Travis Couture (R), and Carolina Mejia (D) received 48.9% of the vote against Sen. Drew MacEwen (R). In both 2022 and 2024, LD25 and LD35 swung ~1-2 points to the right between the primary and general elections, making these districts more of a reach than LD12 and LD14 for Washington State Democrats.

Shifting battlegrounds: LD10, LD26, and LD42

From 2018 through 2024, legislative races in LD10, LD26, and LD42 were among the most competitive in Washington State, with split-ticket voters choosing candidates from both parties as their legislators. In 2026, that era seems to have come to a close, with voters in these districts overwhelming supporting Democratic candidates for the legislature. In LD10 (Island County), incumbents Rep. Clyde Shavers (D) and Rep. Dave Paul (D) received 58.1% and 58.7% of the vote, respectively. In LD26 (Bremerton), incumbent Rep. Adison Richards (D) and Natalie Bornfleth (D) together received 56.1% of the vote, Renee Hernandez Greenfield (D) and Tedd Wetherbee (D) together received 52.9% of the vote for the open seat, and incumbent Sen. Deb Krishnadasan (D) received 56.1% of the vote. In LD42 (Whatcom County), incumbents Rep. Alicia Rule (D) and Joe Timmons (D) received 56.2% and 53.8%, respectively, and Michael Shepard (D) and Eamonn Collins (D) together received 52.9% of the vote against Erika Creydt (R) for the open senate seat. All three districts historically move to the left from the primary to the general election, so Democrats are likely to hold onto all 8 seats.

Leftist challenges: LD29, LD32, LD37, LD43, and LD48

Throughout the Puget Sound, in reliably Democratic districts, progressive Democrats challenged incumbents from the left, and voters were widely supportive of the more progressive candidate. In LD29 (Tacoma), Krista Perez (D) finished first and received ~400 votes more than incumbent Rep. Melanie Morgan (D), in a campaign focused on Morgan's opposition to the Millionaire's Tax passed in early 2026. Similarly, in LD48 (Bellevue, Redmond), Jessica Forsythe (D) finished first just 24 votes ahead of incumbent Rep. Amy Walen (D), again focusing on Walen's opposition to progressive taxation in the legislature. In LD32 (Shoreline and Lynnwood), Rep. Cindy Ryu (D) finished first and received ~2,600 more votes than incumbent Sen. Jesse Salomon (D), arguing that the two-term senator is not representative of the progressive-lean of the district. In LD37 (South Seattle), first-time candidate Kelabe Tewolde (D) received 51.5% of the vote and finished 1,500 votes ahead of 28-year incumbent Rep. Sharon Tomiko Santos (D), in a race focused on the need for new leadership for the district. In LD43 (Seattle), Hannah Sabio-Howell (D) finished second and received ~16,000 fewer votes than incumbent Sen. Jamie Pedersen (D), the top Democrat in the State Senate who, together with affiliated PACs, spent more than $560,000 to defeat Sabio-Howell, making the LD43 State Senate race by-far the most expensive in 2026. Sabio-Howell and Pedersen will face-off in the fall, in a district that historically sees a surge of progressive voter turnout in even-year general elections.

Voter Outreach

The Washington Community Alliance (WCA) Data Hub supports a statewide network of community-based organizations, labor unions, and ballot measure campaigns with their civic engagement work, providing access to tools and training to ensure work is as impactful and data-driven as possible. 24 of our partner organizations were involved in direct voter outreach in the three months leading up to the August 2026 Primary Election, contacting voters in all 39 counties. These organizations collectively made 2,354,096 direct voter contact attempts, including 41,892 door knocks; 153,845 phone calls; 1,489,229 text messages; and 670,126 mailers and postcards.

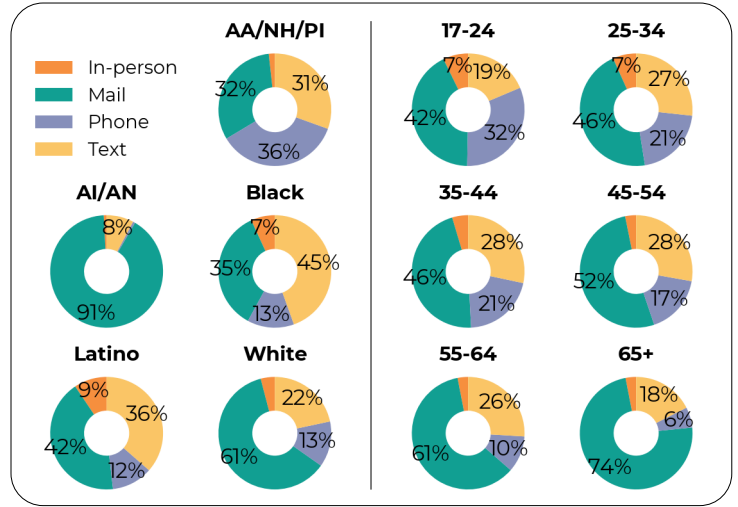

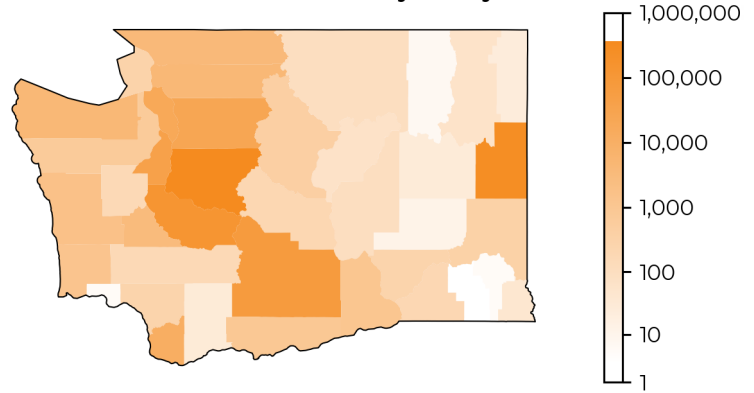

The largest outreach efforts targeted voters in King County (368,435 attempts), Spokane County (271,236 attempts), Pierce County (134,189 attempts), and Yakima County (76,959 attempts). Young voters (under 35) and older voters (65 and over) together received the majority of all outreach, though with notably different tactics: young voters received more in-person canvassing and phone calls, while older voters received more mailers. White voters, AA/NH/PI voters, and Latino voters together received more than 90% of all outreach: White voters primarily received outreach via mail; AA/NH/PI voters received equal shares of phone calls, text messages, and mail; and Latino voters received more in-person outreach than any other group.

Overall, in-person canvassing was the most effective method for engaging with voters: 23% of door knocks (~1 in 4) led to a conversation with voters, compared to 2.1% of phone calls (~1 in 50) and 0.5% for text messages (~1 in 200). While the relative impact of voter outreach efforts varied by a number of factors (contact type, messenger and message, voter demographics), conversations in-person and over the phone led to statistically significant increases in voter turnout: on average, in-person canvassing led to a 12.2% increase in turnout ($t = 5.8$, $p < 0.001$; range: +8.5% to +15.2%), while phone calls led to a 9.4% increase in turnout ($t = 2.4$, $p = 0.040$; range: +0.6% to +16.6%). Messages left over the phone also tended to increase turnout, though the effect size was highly variable and not statistically significant ($t = 1.6$, $p = 0.2$; range: -0.2% to +16.3%). To highlight the incredible work of our partner organizations, this section will dig deeper into three forms of voter engagement used ahead of the 2026 Primary election: deep canvassing, get-out-the-vote (GOTV), and ballot measure advocacy.

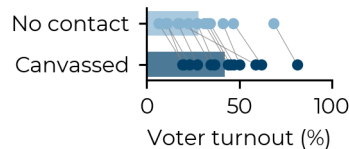

Deep canvassing

Deep canvassing is widely viewed as the most impactful form of voter outreach, centering long, empathetic conversations between volunteers and voters and creating a space for reflection and understanding to bridge deeply-held beliefs and build authentic, lasting relationships. Pacific County Voices Uniting (PCVU) leads one of the most successful deep canvassing programs in the state, focusing solely on voters in Pacific County who receive very little electoral outreach from other organizations and political groups. In the summer of 2026, PCVU knocked on 1,250 doors across Pacific County, having conversations with nearly 200 voters. This work led to a 15.1% increase in voter turnout in the 2026 Primary, with an even larger turnout lift among rural voters (+16.8%). ELLA Adelante is a Latina-led organization that seeks to build political power and hold elected officials accountable through organizing in the Yakima Valley; since 2023, ELLA has been leading South Central Washington's largest deep canvassing program, actively working to expand the electorate by engaging with voters who never or almost never vote. This summer, ELLA knocked on over 3,600 doors across Yakima, Wapato, Mabton, Sunnyside, Toppenish, Granger, Grandview, and Zillah, and collectively had conversations with over 1,100 voters. ELLA's deep canvassing led to a 10.6% increase in voter turnout, with an increase across every age group, race, and city. Community to Community (C2C) is a women of color-led grassroots organization dedicated to food sovereignty and immigrant rights, advocating for social change in Northwestern Washington. This summer, C2C led a unique deep canvassing program in Bellingham, knocking every door in the precinct that has had the lowest voter turnout in recent primary and general elections. Similar low-turnout precincts in Bellingham and in rural Whatcom county had similar turnout in 2026 and 2022; however, in the precinct deep canvassed by C2C's organizers throughout the summer, voter turnout was 4.7% higher in the 2026 Primary compared to the 2022 Primary, and 24% of people who voted in this election had not voted at all in 2022.

Get-Out-The-Vote (GOTV)

GOTV outreach is critical, especially in the final days of an election, particularly for engaging lower-propensity voters. Rather than asking voters to support specific candidates or issues, GOTV work is focused specifically on giving voters information on when, where, and how to turn in their ballot, ensuring that everyone's voice is heard on election day. One of the overarching goals of the WCA network's voter engagement work is building towards a fully representative, inclusive democracy in Washington State. To that end, many of our partner organizations prioritize outreach to segments of the electorate that have historically been disenfranchised, less engaged in our elections, and those who are facing marginalization in our current political climate.

UTOPIA Washington is an advocacy organization working to advocate for housing, employment, education, and healthcare for the Pacific Islander LGBTQIA+ community in the South Puget Sound. UTOPIA's civic engagement work began four years, with intentional outreach to low-propensity AA/NH/PI voters in King and Pierce County. Along with their staff and dedicated volunteers, UTOPIA's GOTV work ahead of the 2026 Primary election included nearly 25,000 phone calls and over 30,000 text messages to 40,000 individuals in the region. 1 in 5 voters contacted by UTOPIA voted in this election, 43% of whom had not voted at all in 2022 or 2024.

ACRS (Asian Counseling & Referral Service), is a King County based social justice organization, advocating for the health and well-being of the AA/NH/PI community by providing a broad range of services, including one of the city's most successful civic education programs. In the final days of voting in the 2026 Primary election, ACRS made over 8,600 phone calls and sent 8,500 text messages to over 13,000 voters. 1 in 5 voters contacted by ACRS voted in this election, 76% of whom had not voted in 2022 or 2024. In the week after the election, ACRS also led ballot curing efforts to ensure every vote was counted, texting nearly 400 voters with challenged ballots, 25% of whom cured their ballots within 2 days.

Native Vote Washington is a Native-led collaborative working to increase political empowerment, education, and engagement of Native Peoples in Washington State. In the summer of 2026, Native Vote led a mail program to boost voter turnout in Native communities, sending more than 82,000 mailers to nearly 28,000 individuals, 31% of whom voted in this election, including over 3,200 who had not voted at all in 2022 or 2024.

Ballot measure advocacy

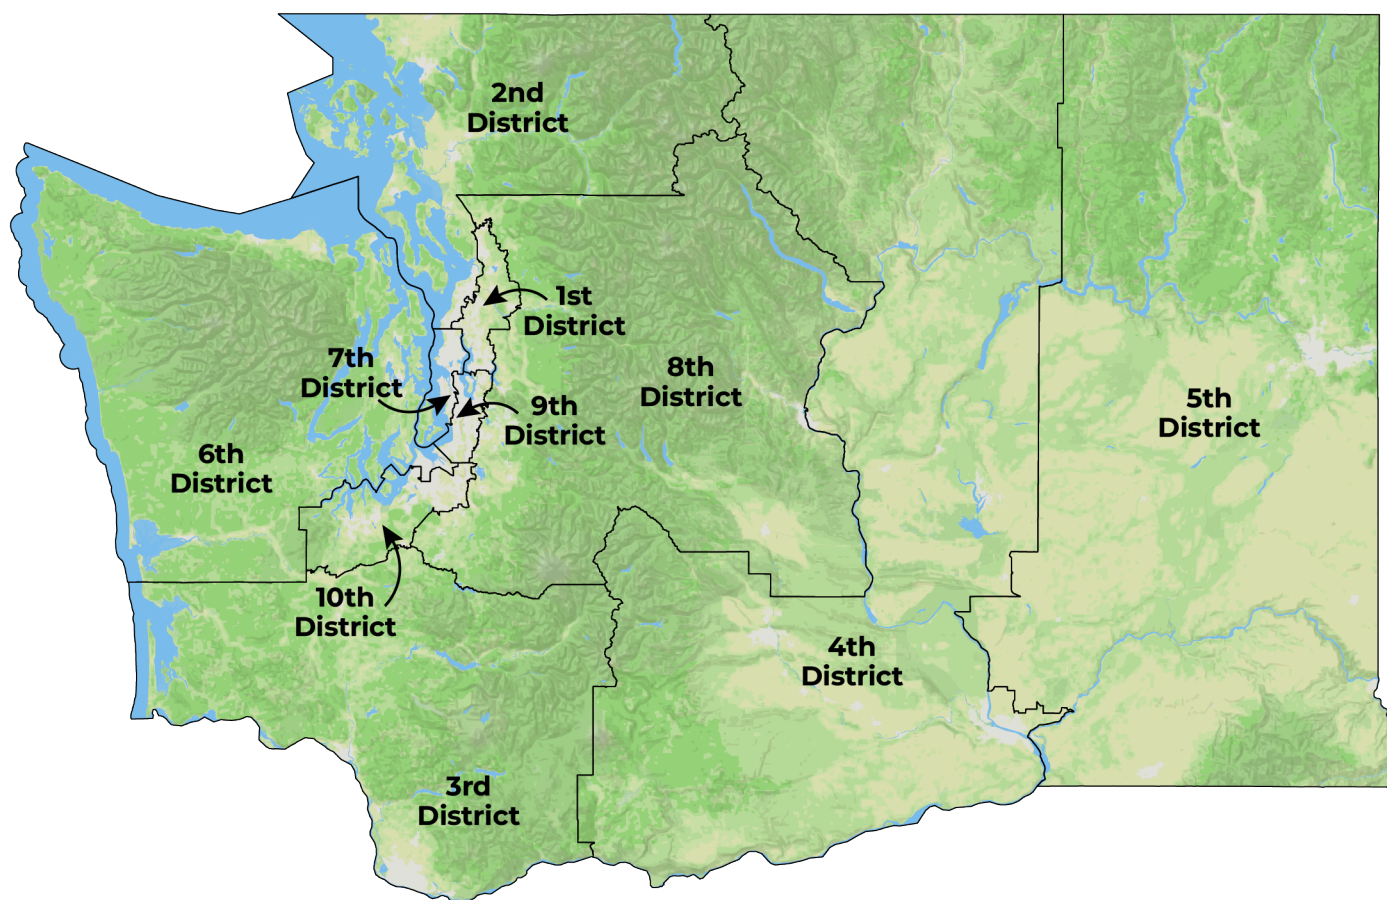

Ballot measures are a form of direct democracy that uniquely allow voters to weigh in on policies that impact their everyday lives. Voter engagement around ballot measures provides an opportunity for organizers to connect with voters around specific policy issues, empowering citizens with ownership over the direction of policy in their community.

In Spokane, Transportation Choices Coalition (TCC) led the Yes for Buses campaign, working to renew public transit funding for the region. Throughout the summer, TCC knocked nearly 8,200 doors, made over 300 phone calls, sent 120,000 text messages, and sent nearly 130,000 mailers to voters throughout the district, collectively reaching more than 141,000 voters. This work was also supported by Fuse Washington, who knocked nearly 800 doors and had conversations with nearly 100 voters, leading to a 12.6% increase in voter turnout. The weekend before election day, as devastating fires swept across Spokane, these groups shifted to local community support and mutual aid, focusing on the immediate needs of the community rather than focusing solely on electoral goals. Voters approved Spokane Transit Authority Measure 1 51.5% to 48.5%, renewing public transit funding for the region for the next 20 years.

The No Hate in Washington State campaign also kicked off statewide efforts before the Primary Election. The campaign is focused on defeating two harmful anti-trans initiatives that will appear on the November 2026 General Election ballot: IL26-001, the Safety Act Repeal that would remove common sense protections for victims of child abuse; and IL26-638, a youth sports ban that would force girls to undergo invasive genital exams to play school sports. The campaign has already made nearly 90,000 phone calls to voters throughout the state, actively building a statewide coalition in order to defeat these two harmful initiatives. Many other WCA partners are actively working to defeat these harmful initiatives, including the Washington Bus, who knocked nearly 2,000 doors in King County and Spokane County throughout the summer to talk to voters about the initiatives.

Overview

Washington State's Congressional delegation in the 119th Congress (2025-2026) includes eight Democrats and two Republicans in the U.S. House of Representatives, and two Democrats in the U.S. Senate. All ten congressional seats are up for election in 2026, with nine incumbents seeking re-election. Despite intra-party challenges and anti-incumbent sentiments among the electorate, every incumbent fended off challenges from within their party and will advance to the general election, and all ten contests will feature a Democratic candidate vs a Republican candidate.

Strong Democratic support: CD1, CD6, CD7, and CD8

Four Democratic incumbents finished with over 50% of the vote in the 2026 Primary, setting themselves up for re-election in the fall. Rep. Suzan DelBene (D, CD1) and Rep. Kim Schrier (D, CD8) faced a number of Democratic challenges who all received <10% of the vote, and will face Republican opponents in the fall. Rep. Emily Randall (D, CD6) and Rep. Pramila Jayapal (D, CD7) faced no challenges from within their own party, and received the most votes of any candidate in the Primary.

Challenges from the left: CD2, CD3, CD9, and CD10

Four Democratic incumbents faced progressive challenges in the Primary and ended with less than 50% of the vote. Rep. Rick Larsen (D, CD2), Rep. Adam Smith (D, CD9), and Rep. Marilyn Strickland (D, CD10) all faced two progressive challengers but still received >40% of the vote, and are likely to win re-election in their reliably-Democratic districts. Rep. Marie Gluesenkamp Perez (D, CD3) received just 37% of the vote, the lowest vote share for any congressional incumbent, and will face State Sen. John Braun (R, LD20) in the General election in a district won by Pres. Trump three times.

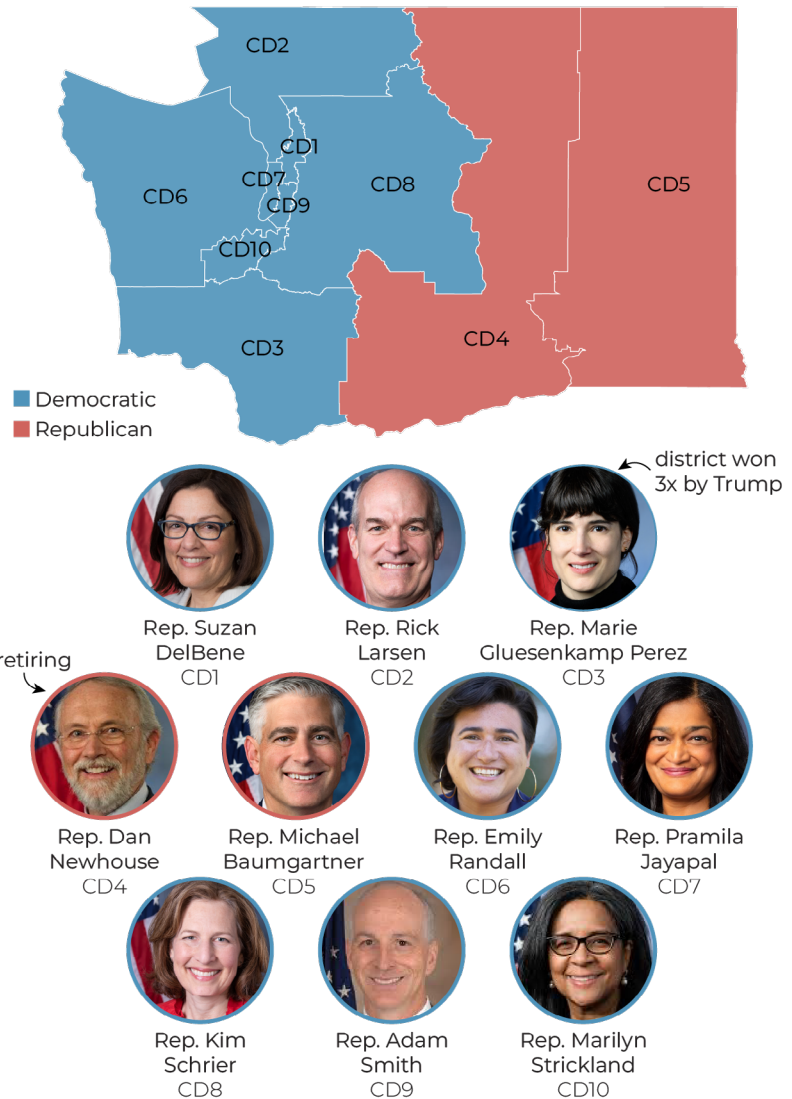

Reliable Republican support: CD4

Rep. Dan Newhouse's retirement created a single open seat in 2026, with a number of Republicans running to fill the seat. Yakima County Commissioner Amanda McKinney (R), Trump's endorsed candidate in the race, finished first with 36%, and will face John Duresky (D) in the state's most reliably-Republican district.

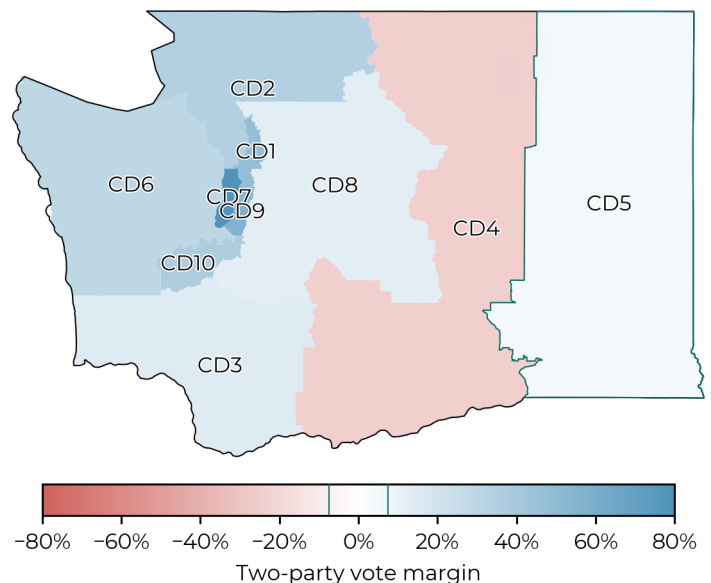

Challenges with the center: CD5

One-term incumbent Rep. Michael Baumgartner (R, CD5) ran in 2024 on a promise of bipartisanship, but his congressional record tells a different story, overwhelmingly supporting far-right legislation. In his first re-election bid, Baumgartner received <50% of the vote, with Democrats and left-leaning Independents collectively receiving >50%. Baumgartner will face Carmela Conroy (D) in the fall in what could be Democrats best chance at flipping CD5 in over 30 years.

Overview

Washington State Democrats hold majorities in both chambers of the State Legislature, with 30 of 49 seats in the State Senate and 59 of 98 seats in the State House of Representatives. Democrats are highly favored to retain control and expand their majorities in both chambers, with the possibility of securing supermajorities in the House in 2026 and the Senate in 2028: Democrats only need to flip 3 seats in the Senate and 7 seats in the House to do so, and there are currently 18 Republicans in the State Legislature representing districts won by Kamala Harris, Sen. Maria Cantwell, and Sec. of State Steve Hobbs in 2024. Notably, districts that had been highly contested in 2022 and 2024 (e.g., LD10, LD26, and LD42) have solidly moved to the left and appear safely in Democratic control, while districts that had been considered reliably Republican (e.g., LD12, LD14, LD25, LD35) now appear to be toss-up districts. Overall, the results of the 2026 Primary election suggest a restructuring of the legislative map.

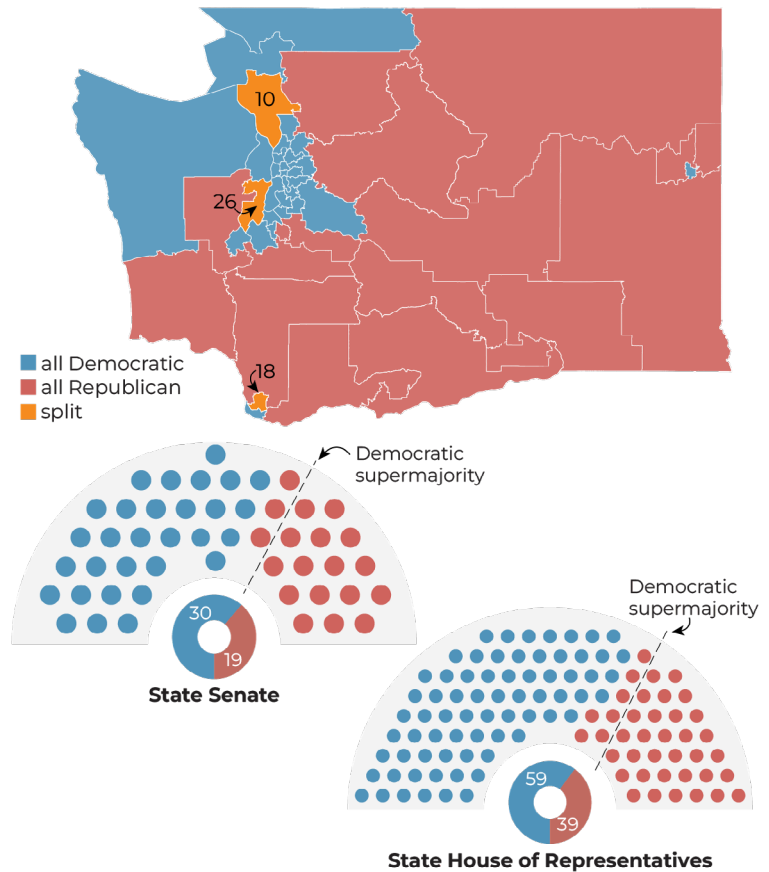

State Senate

Republicans best chances of flipping a seat in the State Senate in 2026 are in LD26 and LD42, and neither seems particularly likely based on the results of the Primary election. In LD26, Sen. Deb Krishnadasan received >56% of the vote, and in LD42, Michael Alvarez Shepard (D) and Eamonn Collins (D) collectively received >53% of the vote, despite running populist progressive campaigns in what was one of the state's swingiest districts just a few years ago. On the other hand, Democrats have the possibility of flipping a seat in LD35, where incumbent Drew C. MacEwen (R) finished just 1,000 votes ahead of Thurston County Commissioner Carolina Mejia (D), setting up a highly competitive race in the fall.

State House of Representatives

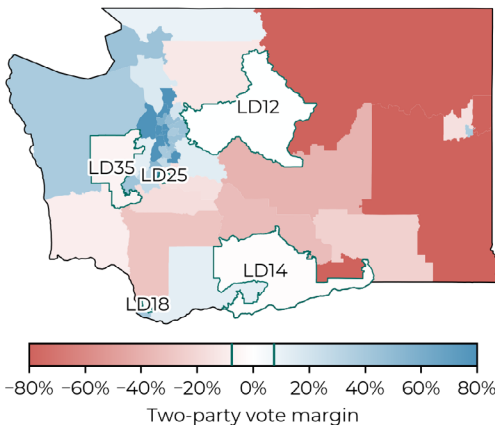

With a supermajority just 7 seats away, Washington State Democrats have a number of paths open to them, with competitive races in the Vancouver suburbs, the Yakima Valley,

2025-2026 Washington State Legislature

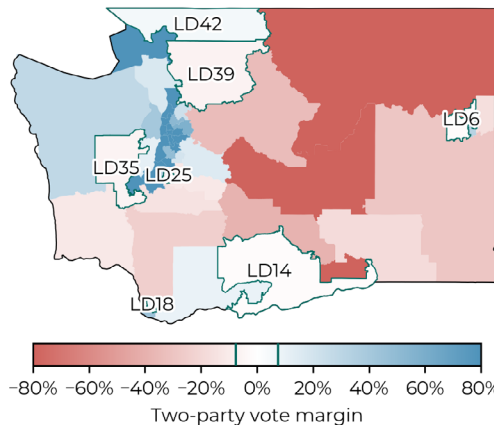

the Olympic Peninsula, the South Puget Sound, the Spokane suburbs, and Chelan County, with Democratic candidates leading or nearly-tied with incumbent Republicans in 13 seats. This includes both seats in LD17 and LD18, where Democrats finished nearly 10 points ahead of Republican incumbents; both seats in LD14, LD25, and LD35, where Republican incumbents finished first but with narrow margins against Democratic challengers; one seat in LD12, where incumbent Rep. Brian Burnett (R) finished <200 votes ahead of Stacy Willoughby (D); and one seat in LD6, where Julia Payne (D) and Aaron Croft (I) together received <500 fewer votes than incumbent Rep. Jonathan Bingle (R).

1st Legislative District

There are 103,035 active voters in LD1 (1,473 new voters), and 39,341 voted in this election (38.2%). Young voters make up 24.3% of the electorate, and turnout of young voters was 21.8% lower than older voters; voters of color comprise 19.8% of the electorate, and turnout of voters of color was 18.0% lower than White voters; female voters account for 51.3% of the electorate, and turnout of female voters was 2.5% higher than male voters. Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary was 3.1% lower than the 2022 Primary in LD1.

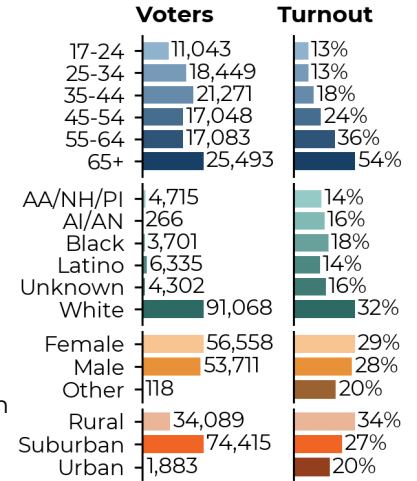

Voters in LD1 cast their ballots for two contests: incumbent Davina Duerr (D) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 1 with 74.7% of the vote, followed by Maggie Wang (R) with 25.1%; incumbent Shelley Kloba (D) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 2 with 48.5% of the vote, followed by Cliff Moon (R) with 23.1%, Jenne Alderks (D) with 22.8%, and Jeff Lyon (I) with 5.5%.

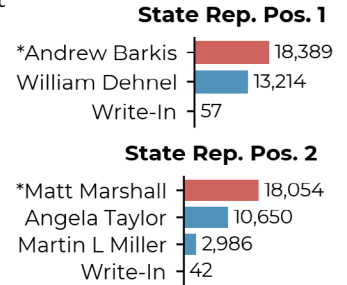

2nd Legislative District

There are 110,387 active voters in LD2 (2,240 new voters), and 31,666 voted in this election (28.7%). Young voters make up 26.7% of the electorate, and turnout of young voters was 21.5% lower than older voters; voters of color comprise 17.5% of the electorate, and turnout of voters of color was 16.2% lower than White voters; female voters account for 51.2% of the electorate, and turnout of female voters was 1.5% higher than male voters. Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary was 4.9% lower than the 2022 Primary in LD2.

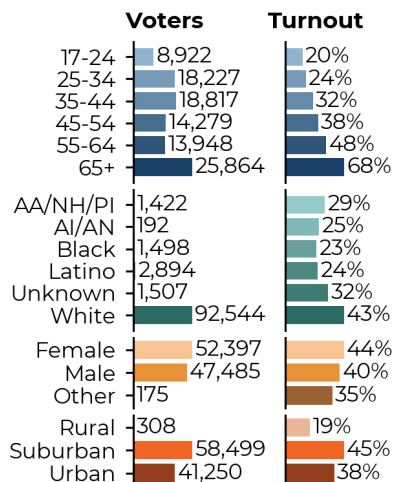

Voters in LD2 cast their ballots for two contests: incumbent Andrew Barkis (R) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 1 with 58.1% of the vote, followed by William Dehnel (D) with 41.8%; incumbent Matt Marshall (R) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 2 with 56.9% of the vote, followed by Angela Taylor (D) with 33.6% and Martin L Miller (D) with 9.4%.

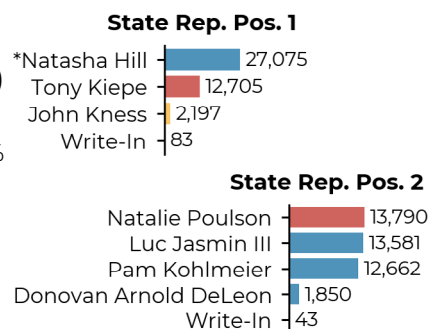

3rd Legislative District

There are 100,057 active voters in LD3 (1,730 new voters), and 42,034 voted in this election (42.0%). Young voters make up 27.1% of the electorate, and turnout of young voters was 26.4% lower than older voters; voters of color comprise 7.5% of the electorate, and turnout of voters of color was 17.0% lower than White voters; female voters account for 52.4% of the electorate, and turnout of female voters was 3.1% higher than male voters. Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary was 1.7% lower than the 2022 Primary in LD3.

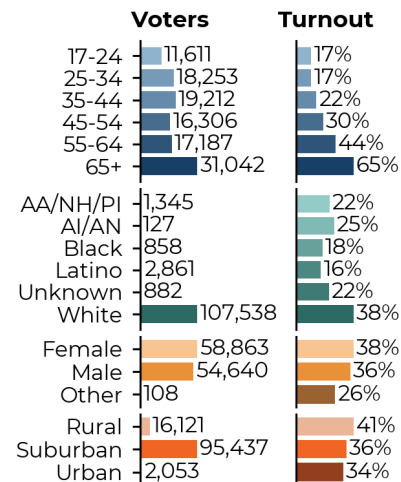

Voters in LD3 cast their ballots for two contests: incumbent Natasha Hill (D) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 1 with 64.4% of the vote, followed by Tony Kiepe (R) with 30.2% and John Kness (I) with 5.2%; Natalie Poulson (R) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 2 with 32.9% of the vote, followed by Luc Jasmin III (D) with 32.4%, Pam Kohlmeier (D) with 30.2%, and Donovan Arnold DeLeon (D) with 4.4%.

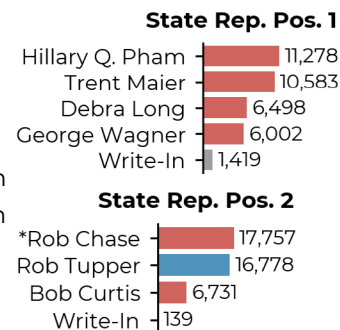

4th Legislative District

There are 113,611 active voters in LD4 (1,886 new voters), and 42,113 voted in this election (37.1%). Young voters make up 26.3% of the electorate, and turnout of young voters was 27.4% lower than older voters; voters of color comprise 5.3% of the electorate, and turnout of voters of color was 19.3% lower than White voters; female voters account for 51.8% of the electorate, and turnout of female voters was 2.1% higher than male voters. Voter turnout in the 2026 Primary was 2.1% lower than the 2022 Primary in LD4.

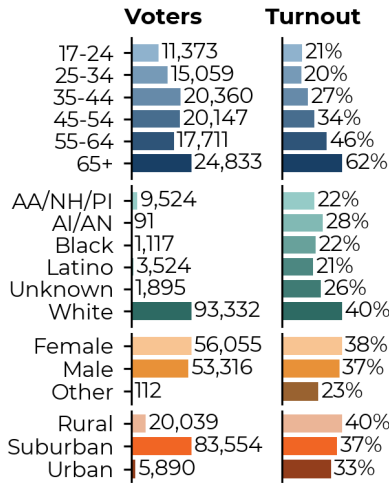

Voters in LD4 cast their ballots for two contests: Hillary Q. Pham (R) finished first in the race for State Rep. Pos. 1 with 31.5% of the vote, followed by Trent Maier (R) with 29.6%, Debra Long (R) with 18.2%, and George Wagner (R) with 16.8%; incumbent Rob Chase (R) finished first in the race for State Rep.
